The Late Duel—Another and another in ProgressNomination of Col. William H. Polk—TexasNew Plans and Reaction.

MES GORDON BENNETT, Esq :-

The principals in the duel, Messrs. Yancey and Clingman appeared in the House to-day in their seats, and were warmly greeted by their friends with congratulations of the fortunate result. The full and interesting account sent you last evening comprised all the details, obtained, as a matter of course, from an authentic source. No doubt various comprised all the details, obtained, as a matter of course, from an authentic source. No doubt various garbied and false reports will be communicated by the letter writers of this city, but you have the only correct account, including the arrest and chase after Judge Meek, of Alabama, who was taken for Mr. Clingman. The ball from the pistol of Mr. C. would have struck Mr Yancey in the head if his aim had been an inch lower, and that of his antagonist came almost as near the vitals of his man—The manner of firing by Clingman is not considered as the most certain, although it is the quickest He lowered the muzzle of his pistol from his shoulder downwards towards his antagonist, thus exposing his side, and not having a line as a mark—Yancey raised his pistol from the ground upwards, thus protecting his body with his arm, from which the ball might have glanced, and also preserving a line of distance as a guide. There appears no disposition to move for the expulsion of these gentlemen, as was loudly threatened by many before the parties met. It will blow over in the same smoke that terminated the duel, although we understand that Levi D. Slamm, of the Plebeian, intends to challenge Clingman for personal abuse in his speech, and as he left here last evening for Baltimore, there is no doubt such is the case. Several members of the Empire Club will also call the sentleman out for personal abuse, and no doubt he will be prepared to meet the whole party, at intervals, before the close of the session.

The nomination of Col. Wm. H. Polk, the brother-of the President elect, by President Tyler, to the comfortable and pleasant situation of Charge Affairs to Naplee, as specially communicated yesterday, has caused much conversation here, expecially among those who have been dancing, cap in hand, in his wake. He is a fine, noble fellow, and has evinced, in his visit here is no doubt that his visit here related solely to this appointment, which was probably tendered to another gentleman, whom we trust will be sent to Mexico, und we trust will be sent to Mexico, under the coming administration Mr. Polk will be confirmed, and leave here in a few weeks, or soon after the inauturation.

Through the personal interference of some person connected with the office of the Journal of Commerce, Postmaster General Wickhiffe has commenced a movement in the Senate to-day, to interfere in your Express Mail to New Orleans He had better save his time and labor, as no action of government can stay its progress, ner no movement compete with it that carries the mail. Forewarned, forearmed, say we.

A new proposition to annex Texas was introduced in the Senate to-day, the particulars of which you will find in the regular report. The debate was also commenced in that body, and we shall now have Texas in both Houses, until some decision is made. My opinion is, however, that the plan of Senator Foster, of Tennessee, a whig, and Milton Brown, of the House, also a whig from the same State, will be finally adopted. These plans were published in yesterday's Herald. The wholesale denunciation of such members as Brinkerhoff, of Ohio, and Stetson, of New York, with the course of Governor Wright in his measage in your State, has within the past few days created a strong re-action in the minds of several of the prominent southern and western whig members, who are now preparing to come into the support of the measure on broad national grounds. If a regular abolition member makes a speech against annexation, or Hale, of New Hampshire, or Hamlin, of Maine, you may rest assured a joint resolution will pass almost immediately afterwards. The democratic members of the Heuse have but oue course to pursue, the result of which will be the reservation of their position in the democratic ranks—that course is to vote for annexation. If they oppose it, they will secure the partial friendship of the abolitionists—be kicked from their own party, and in the end rejected by the very men whose opinions they appear to venerate more than their political friends.

In the House, the debate interier in your Express Mail to New Orleans lie had better save his time and labor, as no action of government can stay its progress, nor no movement compete with it that carries the mail. Mr. Haywood, with an appropriate solemnity and dignity of manner here arose to propose to the Senate a bill for the annexation of Texas to the United States. He expressed the deep and oppressive anxiety which he had experienced in his deliberations upon the subject, as to the plan which might best secure the co-operation of Congress, and the blessings of Heaven upon it. He then reviewed the international history of the relations between the United States and Texas from its original acquisition from France under Mr. Musroe, in 1808, to its surrender under Mr. Musroe, in 1808, to a treaty of exchange for Florida with the Sanish Government. He next exhibited the efforts or desires towards the re-acquisition of Texas, under the administration of Mr. Adams, Gen. Jackson, Mr. Van Buren, and Mr. Tyler, and showed, too, that their diplomatic advisers, and the associate Vice Presidents during their time, looked anxiously to this re-acquisition. He traced the first deep rooted opposition to the measure to those false societies of a false religion, the abolition associations of the North. Slavery was now a question in deput upon this measure, and we mu of the popular will in full view of the question, and recommended this consideration to Senators, & The other propositions of Mr. Haywood's bill, as anderstood from the reading, are, that the territory shall be divided into two parts by a line running in the parallel of the 84th degree North latitude; that that division of the territory lying South-West of this line shall be called by the name of the South-West Territory; and that the portion lying North of said dividing line, including all the territory West of 100 degrees West longitude, up to the 42d degree North latitude, and East of the Rocky Mountains, shall be also a distinct territory under the title of the Nebraskie Territory; that the "Missouri Compromise" shall extend over this territory—the eighth article of which forbids the existence of slavery; and that the Government shall hold, as a sacred obligation, the preservation of the rights and protection pledged to the Indian tribes resident in the Nebraskie Territory; that two States shall be formed of each of the aforesaid Territories; but that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the admigaion, on the assent of parties, to one State, immediately, at the option of the authorities of the Territory of Texas and the United States; the Government of the United States to define the boundary with Mexico, without the interference of Texas. The bill does not ask the assent of Mexico to the contract—says nothing in regard of the debts, scrip, &c, but leaves all that matter to future settlement.

Mr. Haywood never spoke so feelingly as upon the rights of the Indian tribes transported west of the Missiesippi, and which we had sworn as a nation to protect and delend. He hoped that gentlemen in their sympathies would not forget the claims to equal sympathy of the red man. Mr H. in explaining the solemn considerations of harmonizing in the action of the Senate upon this subject, said that it was not because he preferred the plan he had proposed; but rather that it was better to have Texas divide any plan of annexing foreign territory to the United States.

Mr. Sevier desired to know when a report from the Committee on Foreign Relations might be expected on this subject.

Mr. Archer said that, in order to a consideration of all the plans which had been, or were yet to be presented to the committee, and, further, in view of the action of the House, the committee would, perhaps, withhold their report until the cooperate body had come to some decision.

Bill referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and ordered to be printed.

NEW YORK AND NEW ORLEADS EXPRESS.

Mr. Merrick offered a resolution for information from the Post-master General, in relation to the brivate express now in successful operation between New York and New Orleans; and inquiring of Mr. Wickliffs whether there was any law in force by which said express can be stopped by the Department; and if not, what legislation is necessary to arrest the EVIL.

The resolution was adopted and the Senate adjourned.

N. B.—We are informed that the New York

N. B — We are informed that the New York Journal of Commerce instigated this inquiry—whether from any jealousy of the Herald, or not, the editor is best qualified to guess.

anolitionism in the campaign of 1848 in a mere party sense he thought that the tact of Governor Wright evinced judgment, but in a national sense another of struction could be placed upon it. He then pointed to the baneful effects of abolitionism upon the welfare and happiness of the South, and contrasted her former position and wealth with that of her eastern neighbor, whom he alleged had grown rich and luxurious from the tariff taxes imposed upon the South He appealed to the national reclings of the North and the West in favor of the South, and desounced the question of annexation as sectional, but pointed to the immense advantages to be derived by the North, by the extension of her carrying trade and commerce, including her manufactures. The speech was decidedly the most judicious of any that hasemanated from a Southern member. His hour having expired, Mr. Brown, a democrat of Indiana, obtained the floor, but Mr. Monsa, of Louisiana rose to explain, by saying, that in a report of his speech on Texas, delivered on Saturday, as published in the Herald, he was made to say that the "slaves of the South were better fed, better clothed, and more intelligent than the laborers in the manufactories of the North, but the operatives in the manufactories of the North, but the operatives in the manufactories of European governments, and more especially in Eugland. This he did say, and from practical observation and experience, he could prove that fact, and would have proved it, if time had been given him, before closing his speech.

Mr. Baown, of Indiana, then proceeded, and occupied his hour with a repetition of a pretty good stump speech, such as all your readers have probably heard before the election, interlarding it with choice quotations from Shakspeare, Scripture, &c., and the ditties of 1840, such as With Tippecases and Tyler.

They've burst their owr.
Mr. GARRET Davis, a whig of Kentucky, obtained the floor and opposed annexation, except by treaty, and as a matter of course, would have opposed it in that shape, if in a place to evince opposition. He labored nearly his hour, when Mr. Bowlin, of Missouri, obtained the floor, and the House adjourned until to-morrow, when he will address the committee on the question.

Philadelphia. [Correspondence of the Herald;]
PRILADELPHIA, Jan. 15th, 1845.

As the Herald does not appear to be regularly apprized of passing events in this city, I have concluded to seat me for the purpose of supplying the vacuum for one day at least. There is nething particularly worthy of observation, however, excepting perhaps the excitement growing out of a few matters of recent occurrence, both here and in

New York.

The great topic of conversation in all classes, seems to be the Onderdonk question, and the query, how long a church can exist without a Bishop I as it seems, by a remarkable coincidence, we of Philadelphia as well as you of Gotham, are subjected to delphia as well as you of Gotham, are subjected to the same fiery ordeal at the very same time. There is a very great variety of opinion about the difficulty originating in the Court of Bishops, and I have heard a considerable conversation on the subject, by no means complimentary to the disinterested gentlemen of the gown, who have been the means of laying open to public observation, the lamentable tack of morality and decency among the clerky. The conspiracy, as unravelled by Richmond, has operated as an additional brand to the burning, and to a certain extent has turned the tide of popular opinion in relation to the charge against the Bishop. Before the appearance of this document, there assemed to be a tie in the contest; but the statement possesses the intrinsic merit of trath, and truth is mighty. The difficulty heretofore was hinged upon the probability, that the prosecution was grounded upon the effort to possess the funds of Trainty Church Corporation, and hatred of Puscyism, e.e. But Richmond has directed public attention from that matter; and the question now is, did the Bishop actually take such liberties with the ladies as are charged? Let us wait, and see, and judge for ourselves.

• Mee Bull held his first concert at the Masical Fund last evening. The spacious Hall was crewded to its capacity, as the most intense anxiety existed to hear "Niagara." It is but justice to Ole Bull to say that his composition was received with every manifestion of delight and satisfaction; but, to my untutored ear, his "Norges Helde," or mountains of Norway, is infinitely better calculated to please the popular ear, though as a work of pelished art, Niagara may be superior.

There appears to be a great similarity pervading the composition of this great master. As in "Norges Helde," the opening of Niagara indicates that the purit is going quietly forth in a glorious summer morning—presently your ears are saluted with the songs of the forest choristers, then the gurgling and learn of the waters, and then the tremendous reverberations of the dashing fall. After this, a sort of requiem over the grandeur and sublimity of the scene, and finally winding up with the soft and plaintive "Long—long time ago."

It is beyond doubt a glorious composition; but I am afraid that it can never be properly appreciated only by the cultivated ear. As already observed, however, it was received with deafening applause, and I have no doubt but that its repetition will prove its success.

His second concert will be given on Saturday

His second concert will be given on Saturday evening next.

During the last week our people were literally crazy after the opera. The Seguins and troups, held one of the most successful engagements at the Chesaut Street Theatre known in this city, and on last Saturday night, the house was literary crammed from pit to dome.

Our Legislature have elected the Hon. D. Stur geon, to the Senate for six years from the 4 h of March. Nothing new in the political world whatever.
